Financial Education for Military Caregivers

Regardless of how long you have cared for a wounded servicemember or veteran, you may still experience financial changes. The Elizabeth Dole Foundation, USAA, MOAA, and the PsychArmor Institute have teamed up to offer free financial education assistance to caregivers with no membership requirement to any of the organizations. You can learn more at HiddenHeroes.org/USAA.

USAA Financial Advisors

USAA's advisors have the skills and experience to assist military caregivers with the following:

- Tips and tools on how to create and manage your budget
- Easy and convenient ways to save for future expenses and goals
- Techniques for paying off debt to free up cash for other needs and wants
- How to rebuild your credit score if you've been having problems with debt
- Smart approaches to using credit
- Identifying the types of health and life insurance appropriate for you, as well as coverage levels
- Investing strategies to help you save for longer term goals like your retirement
- Assist with basic estate planning advice to help you protect the interests of your service member/veteran and yourself
- Helping your service member financially transition from the military

How you can reach a USAA financial advisor:

No matter where you are on your journey as a military or veterans caregiver, financial questions can be tough to manage. Challenges arise with insurance, budgets, credit scores, savings and investments. Free assistance is available from USAA and MOAA for caregivers and you don't have to be a member of either organization to call. Military and veterans caregivers can call MOAA at 888-503-1168 from 12:00 PM EST to 6 PM EST on normal business days and learn more at HiddenHeroes.org/USAA.

The USAA financial advisor will spend some time getting to know you, your situation and your finances. After determining your needs, the USAA advisor will provide you with advice to assist you and/or your service member or veteran. If you are calling on behalf of your service member/veteran, USAA will ask you to provide a Power of Attorney which enables the advisor to assist you in more specific terms. Upon request, USAA will make available a Power of Attorney form, which may be used depending upon your situation. Please consult your tax and legal advisers regarding your specific situation, as needs and requirements vary from person to person.

USAA's mission is to facilitate the financial security of its members. The first part of that experience is to listen and then provide you with advice that is appropriate to you. There is no charge for speaking with the USAA advisor. The second part of that experience is to show you how you can take action, which may include recommending specific solutions offered by USAA for your consideration.

We know you experience many stresses in caring for your service member/veteran. We're here to assist you in getting you on a firmer financial footing, now and into the future.
